New York, Sept. 29.—Although the football season for most of the big colleges is now a week old the west has not yet gone into action for any of the important games. In the "big nine" tomorrow Indiana only has a game which appears to be of importance. Chicago, Illinois, Nebraska, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa all are idle.

In the east the stronger teams are gradually drawing toward the harder part of their schedules. The "big three," Harvard, Yale and Princeton, all have games of more or less importance scheduled for tomorrow. At New Haven Yale will take on Carnegie Institute in what should prove to be little more than a hard practice scrimmage, and at Cambridge Harvard will meet Bates. This game should serve to bring out some of Harvard's best football, for the Bates warriors undoubtedly will offer a strong front. Princeton will meet more opposition than any of its chief rivals when it goes against Holy Cross. Princeton probably will be forced to uncoil some of its best football to triumph by a decided score.

Both Army and Navy teams will be in action tomorrow on their home fields. The middies are scheduled with Dickinson and the Army will take on Lebanon Valley.

In the past Dickinson has always proved a hard proposition for the Annapolis eleven and this game probably will prove no exception to the rule. Army coaches are expecting only a hard practice scrimmage at the hands of Lebanon.
